DAYS OF DISCOVERY TO SPELEOLOGY

October 2nd, Tous, Valencia.

On October 2, the third edition of the open days for speleology was held, where, as on previous occasions, some 60 residents of the region, including children and adults, had the opportunity to discover the underground world with us. The conference was a total success where the participation and general satisfaction of the attendees were much higher than expected.

We started the day at the viewpoint of the Tous dam, where attendees gradually arrived to register and have lunch with all of us, enjoying a small exhibition and the surroundings that offer us spectacular views of the entire reservoir and surroundings of Tous.

After forming the 3 groups, we explain how the visit will unfold and discuss a series of guidelines to take into account during the activity. We left for the parking lot of the cave where we equipped ourselves with helmets, headlamps and boots and started our march towards the mouth of Candil, a small fossil cave of a horizontal nature and about 300 meters long where the Gours at the entrance, full of water and the multicolored vaults eroded by the passage of water for millennia, make this small cavity ideal for this type of visit.

The groups are entering little by little where with the help of a topography and always with the support of the entire organization, they are looking for the boxes of the training dynamics, after an hour and a half we all meet at the end of the cave and take At the end of the dynamic where the 3 groups open their boxes and read the questions that are in them, which we answer together, we have the opportunity for our colleague Formentín, answering one of the questions, to give us a demonstration of the system of lighting that was used in the past, the carburetor.

After the group photo, we gradually resumed our way back to the cars where we dismissed the day with applause for the attendees.

The organization moved to the town to eat at the Mesón of Tous where a paella awaits us where we can exchange impressions and this time we will say goodbye to the day and the long days of work prior to this.
